Queen Elizabeth's House, Worcester. Queen Elizabeth visited Worcester in 1574. There is an interesting souvenir of her visit in the Charity Houses bearing her name, formerly in Trinity and now in the Tything. These were, however, only erected in 1876-7, while the house depicted is one of the numerous old timbered houses in Worcester, dating back to Tudor times. Queen Elizabeth's Charity is for twenty women, who receive 5s. per week, and a ton of coals yearly.
